My mother passed away when I was 5 years old. My dad went to jail and I was placed in the care of my Grandparents. I had a social worker who drove me from my aunt's house to my grandparents house.

I was placed here with my 2 brothers and my sister.

During my time with my grandparents I suffered a variety of abuse. In the mornings waking up for school, my grandmother would wake up and come into our room (we all shared the same bedroom. Ages ranging from 5-15) and scream for us to wake up, but she never stayed awake. She would go back to bed and we would at a young age, have to get ourselves ready for school. On a daily basis, i would never eat breakfast, i would go to school hungry everyday. This played a part on my mental wellbeing and focus to learning in school.

My school uniform was never presentable. I'd walk around with overworn clothes, holes in my clothes, holes in my shoes that would make my feet wet. This would cause me a great deal of humiliation, intimidation and embarrassment as i used to get looks on a daily basis from other pupils and this made me feel so small as this was out of my control on how I looked. I wish I had cleaner and more newer uniforms to feel nice about myself. I don't even remember having a winter coat when it was cold outside or raining.

As I got older, I was given minimal dinner money in which instead of using for food, I'd have to use on buying sanitary towels when my lady problems happened in order to stay hygienic. The reason why I never asked my grandparents for this was because my sister didn't have one on one time and when she had put her clothes in the wash, my grandparents saw her knickers and called her a "dirty bh".

Whenever I'd get home late by accident, cheeky in any way, forgotten to put something away or my report card wasn't good in school, this would result in my getting a slap. I was slapped in the head, shoulders and face overtime.

My older brother received the worst of it off my grandfather. He would get the belt across his backside. I'm unsure if he had his pants pulled down so it connected with his skin but I can remember hearing how hard he got whacked and the screams from my brother.

Overall this has now led me to giving my children/grandchildren a much better upbringing than I did as I would not like to see them go through what I went through.
