My dad worked in an oil rig, and he worked two weeks on, two weeks off. When he was working me and my siblings were with our birth mother and her partner, where we were abused.

I lost my childhood. We never had the chance to be children. My mother was constantly at the pub, drunk, and there were always different men coming in and out of the house. We were left to fend for ourselves and lived in constant fear.

I was often forced to walk to the shop in the middle of the night to buy things for my mother. If I refused or did not do what I was told, I knew I would be beaten again. We were terrified of the consequences of saying no.

At night, our bedroom doors would be locked and tied together so we could not get out. We felt trapped and completely helpless.

One night, my mother's partner was stabbed in the house. My siblings and I witnessed the whole thing. Afterwards, my brother was brutally beaten because he was blamed for not opening the front door quickly enough. We were only children, left home alone, and the front door had been locked. None of it was our fault, but we were punished anyway.

My nan and auntie reported my mother's abuse to Social Services and made a formal complaint. I understand there is a statement on record showing that Social Services were made aware of what was happening.

While we were living with our mother, we continued to attend school. Staff regularly checked us for bruises and signs of injury. On several occasions, we were removed from our mother's care, but each time we were returned to her. The professionals knew we were being abused, yet we were still sent back into that environment.

I remember being placed there with my brother and sister. We were only children and didn't understand why we were there or what was happening. Instead of feeling safe, we were left to fend for ourselves.

My sister was bullied terribly, and all three of us were constantly picked on. Fighting became a regular occurrence because there was little supervision or protection from the staff. We wore hand-me-down clothes, weren't properly cared for, and I slowly lost myself while I was there.

One incident has stayed with me. I was sitting at a table with my legs wrapped around the chair when a girl came over and attacked me. Later, she hid in a wardrobe, jumped out and beat me. We had been placed there for protection, yet no one protected us. There was no intervention or support, and we were left to deal with it ourselves.

There was also no care for our personal hygiene. As a young girl, nobody taught me about my body or the changes I was going through. We were neglected, emotionally abandoned, and expected to cope on our own.

Looking back, we weren't given the care, protection or guidance that children deserve. Instead, we were left feeling frightened, neglected and completely forgotten.

We were in this place to protect us from what happened at home, and all of them ended up being the same, or worse.
