I want to begin by saying that this is extremely difficult for me to talk about. These events are on my mind every single day, and even recounting them now brings up a great deal of emotion. However, it is important that what happened to me is heard and properly recorded.

It started during what should have been an entirely innocent situation. I was having a pillow fight with my friends — the kind of thing children do — when a member of staff named Tam Young intervened in a way that was violent and completely disproportionate. He put me flat on the floor, and every time I moved he would bend my arms and wrists back with such force that it almost broke them. The physical pain was severe, but it was the shock of it — the fact that a grown adult was doing this to a child — that has stayed with me. From that point on, I have had to take medication, including antipsychotic medication, and that has been a part of my life ever since.

The restraints did not stop there. I was restrained on a regular basis, often for the most minor and trivial things. Something as innocent as laughing, or failing to make my bed, could result in being physically restrained. It was terrifying, and I would cry during these incidents. Rather than being comforted, my distress seemed to make no difference to those who were supposed to be caring for me.

Alongside the physical treatment, I was subjected to ongoing humiliation and isolation. I was sent to dormitories as punishment, made to stand in corners, and humiliated in front of the other children. Being degraded in that way, in front of my peers, was deeply damaging to my sense of dignity and self-worth. I was made to feel like I was nothing.

There was also sexual abuse taking place towards other children in that environment, which I was aware of. This added another layer of fear and distress to an already unbearable situation.

I also need to disclose something that I have carried with me for a very long time, and which is deeply painful to put into words. During one of the occasions when Tam Young had me in a physical hold, he squeezed my genital area. I have thought about that moment countless times over the years, and I still struggle to fully process what was done to me. It was a violation, and it should never have happened.

What I experienced in that home left a lasting mark on every part of my life — my mental health, my physical health, and my sense of safety in the world. I carry it with me every day, and I feel it is important that it is now part of the record.
