You can do this in any order that makes sense to you.

There are pages for 4 care settings included in this form. If you need more copies, you can:

During my time at Glascune, things felt strange and difficult from the very beginning. I was there for eleven years, and the first few years were extremely strict. Everything felt regimented and almost militarised, as if I was being trained rather than cared for. We were made to get up early and do loads of jobs, and it often felt like we were being used for labour rather than being looked after. As a child, it was confusing and overwhelming, and I remember feeling constantly on edge.

If we did anything wrong, even something small, they would hit us with a big old leather slipper. It hurt a lot, and the fear of being punished was always there. They would force me to stand in the dark corridor for hours, sometimes until the staff were ready to go to bed. Standing there alone in the dark made me feel scared, isolated, and completely powerless. They would wash my mouth out with soapy water over the smallest things, punishments that never matched what actually happened.

There were times when they restrained me on the bed, pinning me down and hitting me with the slipper. Being held down like that was terrifying, and it made me feel trapped in a place where I had no control. They would also send me to bed without tea, leaving me hungry and upset. All of these things built up over time, and the environment became harder and harder to cope with.

Because of how I was treated, I ran away multiple times. I felt desperate to escape the constant fear and strictness. My mental health was affected so badly that at one point I even set fire to one of the buildings. Looking back, it shows just how distressed and overwhelmed I was, and how much I was struggling to cope with everything happening around me.

When the new owners eventually came in, things did improve and the atmosphere became better. But the damage from those early years stayed with me. The strictness, the punishments, the fear, and the lack of emotional support have all had a lasting impact on my mental health. Even now, I still feel the effects of what I went through at Glascune.
