I was only in LarchGrove for around six months, until I was about twelve and a half years old. I don't remember every detail from that time, but what I do remember is the constant feeling of fear. The staff were always shouting at me, and if I didn't respond immediately or if I reacted to the shouting, they would restrain me. These restraints were painful, and I remember being physically hurt during them. They would also lock me in my room overnight. If I needed the toilet, I would try to hold it in because we knew we would get into trouble if we wet the bed. Living like that made me feel constantly anxious and on edge, and even though I was so young, I knew something wasn't right.

Your statement for Care setting 2 continued

I spent two years in Newfield. During my time there, I was abused by staff. They would physically hit me, and they would verbally abuse me as well. The shouting, the name calling, and the constant intimidation became part of daily life. I wasn't the only one being treated this way — I witnessed other young people being abused too. It felt like it was happening all the time, and I saw more or less everyone there get physically assaulted at some point. I left Newfield when I was around fourteen years old, but the fear and the emotional impact of what happened there stayed with me long after I left.

I spent around two years in Ballrossie. Unfortunately, Ballrossie was very similar to Newfield. The staff would constantly abuse the children. They would scream in our faces, call us names, and treat us with no respect or care. If I answered back or didn't do exactly what they said straight away, they would restrain me. These restraints were forceful, and I remember being pinned down and even hit. It felt like there was no escape from the cycle of fear and punishment. I left Ballrossie when I was about sixteen years old, but again, the emotional damage had already been done.

I then spent around two years at Geilsland School. My experience there was also extremely negative. The school environment was chaotic and unsafe. The teachers would hit pupils, and there were even times when teachers fought with each other. I witnessed multiple incidents where teachers hit pupils, and I also witnessed a couple of boys being sexually assaulted during my time there. Geilsland was supposed to support me and help find me a stable home, but that never happened. Instead, I remained there until I was about eighteen years old, feeling stuck in a place that was supposed to protect me but instead exposed me to more harm.
