During my time there, things were awful from the very beginning. As soon as I arrived, they stripped me completely naked, and the staff stood there laughing at me. It was humiliating and frightening, and it set the tone for everything that followed. The staff would beat me, grab me, and throw me around. They would kick and punch me, and they seemed to find it amusing. The way they treated me was degrading, and it made me feel completely powerless.

They would also point at my private areas and laugh, which made the whole experience even more humiliating. I remember feeling exposed, ashamed, and terrified. There was no sense of safety or dignity. The time I spent there was filled with fear, and I never knew what was going to happen next. The staff were supposed to protect us, but instead they were the ones causing the harm.

It wasn't just me who was treated this way. I saw many other boys being beaten and mistreated as well. It felt like the staff were looking for excuses to hurt us, almost as if they were provoking situations just so they could justify their behaviour. Watching others go through the same abuse made me feel even more hopeless, because it showed that none of us were safe.

we had a cigarette allowance and they would never give them us and even hit us if we did ask. During my time there I also had no money and had to do sexual favrs to make some money.

The constant fear, the humiliation, and the physical abuse have all had a lasting effect on my mental health. Even now, I still carry the emotional impact of what happened there. The way I was treated has stayed with me throughout my life, and it has shaped how I see myself and how I cope with difficult situations. My time there was one of the most traumatic experiences I have ever lived through, and it is something I will never forget. I later in life suffer from Depression and Epilepsy and the doctors say that the epilepsy is caused from so many hits to the head.

During my time in Longriggend, I was only 15 years old, and it was absolutely awful. From the moment I arrived, the environment felt harsh, frightening, and completely unsafe. They would lock us in, and the staff were extremely abusive towards us. We weren't even allowed to sit on our beds. Any small thing we did, or even just existing in the space, seemed to be treated as an excuse for punishment.

Every opportunity they had, they would come into the cells and beat us. I was physically assaulted more or less every single day while I was inside Longriggend. The fear of what might happen next was constant. They inspected the cells daily, and if there was even the slightest thing out of place, they would beat us for it. Sometimes they would deliberately mess up the room themselves and then punish us for it being "wrong." It felt like there was no way to avoid the violence — no matter what we did, we were targeted.

I remember one man in particular, Jimmy Hall. He was a big man, and the way he treated us was terrifying. He was extremely aggressive, and he would beat us badly. His presence alone made me anxious, because I knew what he was capable of. Being so young and having to face that kind of behaviour from an adult in authority left a deep emotional mark on me.

The whole experience changed me. Since then, I have always been more reserved and timid. The constant fear, the physical abuse, and the feeling of having no control over my own safety have stayed with me throughout my life. Longriggend was supposed to be a place where I was supervised and kept safe, but instead it became one of the most traumatic experiences I have ever lived through.
