What I experienced in this home was among the most serious and damaging things that has ever happened to me, and it is something I have carried with me every day of my life since.

A member of staff named Mr Donald McAlley sexually abused me. I woke up to find him in bed with me, and he was abusing me in my sleep. This was not an isolated incident involving only myself — he was doing this to a number of girls in the home. I later came to understand that he had also been sacked from another home prior to this, where he had been sexually assaulting boys in his care. He was a known danger, and yet he was in a position where he had access to vulnerable children.

I want it on record that Mr McAlley was charged in court for the abuse he carried out against me. However, before he could be sentenced, he died of a heart attack. He never faced the consequences of what he did. I have had to live with what happened to me every day, while he was never held fully accountable, and that is something I find very difficult to accept.

Mr McAlley also took us on holiday, which may have appeared on the surface to be a kind gesture, but during that trip he crashed the car while drunk, and we ended up in a ditch. We were children in the care of someone who was supposed to keep us safe, and instead our lives were put at risk.

The broader culture within that home was one of cruelty and neglect. All of the carers were unkind, and I have since heard that following my time there, others were also found to have been mistreating the children in their care. That does not surprise me in the least. What I witnessed and experienced myself was indicative of an environment where the abuse of children was tolerated.

As a form of so-called treatment, I was isolated and placed in a silent room — what I can only describe as a silent cell. Being confined in that way, cut off from any human contact or comfort, was deeply distressing and did nothing to help me. It only added to the trauma I was already experiencing.

I ran away frequently. The home was not a safe place for me, and running felt like the only way to escape. Each time I was brought back by staff and police, and each time I returned to the same environment that had driven me to run in the first place.

The impact of everything I experienced in that home has been profound and long-lasting. I have struggled significantly with my mental health as a direct result of what was done to me. I have self-harmed, and that has taken a serious toll on my physical health and wellbeing. I have drunk heavily as a way of trying to cope with what I carry inside me. There have also been times when I have stolen from shops, not out of greed, but because my mind has been so overwhelmed and fractured by everything I have been through that I have not always been able to function as I would wish to. I am not proud of these things, but they are the reality of what living with this level of trauma looks like, and they are a direct consequence of what was done to me as a child.

I deserved to be protected. I deserved to be safe. Instead, the very people who were responsible for my care caused me harm that I am still trying to recover from today.
