21.11.22 11:00am	I met Andrew for our third psychology appointment. He engaged well, contributing appropriately when prompted. The focus of the session was on understanding the voices he hears, as well as coping strategies. He appeared anxious and did not make eye contact, though he was able to tolerate meeting for 30 minutes. Andrew spoke of feelings of being left by people and of finding it difficult to trust people. He said that the voices can tell him not to trust others. I informed Andrew that I was arranging with the MDT to purchase rose essential oils as a grounding technique for him. We also completed the CORE-10 together, he scored a total of 25. He did not report any plans to end his life. Andrew consented to me sharing his contact details (i.e., name, CHI number and telephone number with the AVATAR research trial). 23.11.22 14:47	I met with Andy to discuss the AVATAR research trial. I was made aware by the research project that people cannot be receiving active therapy focused on voices at the same time as participating in the research project. I explained this to Andy and he understood. I explained the options to him of either continuing with therapy, or pausing therapy (w.th check ins, and indirect psychological support). Andy said he wants to proceed with therapy, stating that he feels left by people. I explained in either option I would still support him. Andy confirmed he does want therapy in the ward. I agreed to this and plan to see him for an appointment next week. I am also arranging an order for rose essential oils from Andy.	Robert Turton Clinical Psychologist

25/02/22 16:05	Dr Chatterjee - CTO Note:-
	Nursing feedback:- Andy has been spending most of his time in his room. He has been observed to be sitting in the dark for long periods. Today he was seen to have been out of his room which appears to be a change. He has been skipping lunch and dinner often and has breakfast. It takes a lot of encouragement for Andy to speak his mind as his speech is very monosyllabic.
	With patient :- Andy appeared quite facially flat today when he was seen to be sitting up on his bed. His speech was minimal mostly answering in 'yes' and 'no' stating there has been no major change in his mental health. He continues to report that he hears voices calling out his name, unable to state if he knows whose voice it is. He states he fell last week but no further incidences of fall. He reports his sleep is 'better' - although he wakes up in the afternoon most days. He is aware of not rushing to get out of bed as it makes him unsteady on his feet.
	Plan ⇒ Haloperidol regular reduced from 5mg BD to 5mg OD.
	⇒ Monitor Andy for any deterioration in mental health. ~~or reports of fa~~

	Andy noted to be lying in his bed. He states he has not been spending much time out of his room. He reports that his appetite and sleep pattern have remained unchanged. He has ~~been~~ ~~visited~~ received a visit from the police notifying him that he was being charged for a vehicle theft in 2020. Andy has worried about this news and has been feeling upset. He has been using PRN medication which he reports has not been too effective
	Andy denies having any sideeffects to the medications. There was minimal eye contact during the review although Andy appeared a little more interactive than my previous reviews with him. No change in mood and Andy offers very little in terms of content of thought. Not seen to be responding to unseen stimuli,
